Born for the city

Keen to limit their environmental impact, Jumbo, the Netherlands' number two supermarket chain, and its transporter SVZ have teamed up with Renault Trucks to continue developing the Oxygen urban laboratory vehicle, dedicated to decarbonising urban goods transport. This new prototype, equipped with a refrigerated body, will begin testing in Amsterdam in October.

What is a Good Move?

A Good Move is something that helps – or inspires us – at Renault Trucks to reach our ambitious goals of reducing CO₂ emissions.

Why is this a Good Move?

In addition to decarbonising the supply of goods to supermarkets in Amsterdam, this new Oxygen prototype will help improve the coexistence between trucks and city users.

With more than 700 points of sale in the Netherlands and Belgium, Jumbo and its transport supplier SVZ are leading the way in reducing the environmental impact of city deliveries.
